

Association of Salmon Fishery Boards

NEWS RELEASE

28 March 2012: for immediate release

Fishery Trusts and SNH sign historic agreement

The Rivers and Fisheries Trusts of Scotland (RAFTS) has agreed a ground-breaking co-operation accord with Scottish Natural Heritage (SNH) in recognition of their common objectives for the better management of aquatic environments and fisheries and the conservation of native fish species. The Statement of Intent will be formally launched by both parties at the joint RAFTS and Association of Salmon Fishery Boards (ASFB) 2012 Conference being held at SNH's Battleby Centre on Thursday March 29.

The joint statement re-affirms each organisation's appreciation of the other's interests, recognises the benefits of the public and private sectors forming strong and effective partnerships and details arrangements for future liaison and co-operation. It recognises that RAFTS' research, advice and capacity to co-ordinate and deliver projects is now well proven and that Fishery Trusts are set to play an increasingly important role in securing the future of Scotland's rivers and lochs and the diverse flora and fauna that they support.

Andrew Wallace, Chairman of RAFTS, commented: "RAFTS and SNH have, over recent years, been developing important partnerships around the shared objectives of better managing and conserving Scotland's river catchments, their fish and fisheries. This document enshrines these aspirations and the need, in difficult economic times, for the public sector and third sector to work in a smarter, more effective way. With several strong existing partnership programmes already underway we can look forward to developing this relationship with confidence and optimism."

Ian Jardine, Chief Executive of SNH, added: "SNH and RAFTS are committed to realising benefits from Scotland's rich natural environment, particularly our fresh water. That relationship has been further strengthened by our joint statement of intent issued today which will drive what we do, and how we do it. Our natural capital is important to everyone in Scotland. Put simply, this is the recognition that our natural heritage is significant economically and provides associated health and well-being benefits for all of us."

Mr Jardine continued: "An SNH poll in 2011 revealed 91% of people are glad that wild salmon are in Scotland's rivers. Rivers and lochs are most highly valued assets and we are committed to working with partners to manage and conserve our freshwater environment. This is part of our natural capital which has a significant economic role and landscape and marine environments are a boost to Scotland's Gross Domestic Product."

Callum Sinclair, Director of RAFTS said: "For several years, RAFTS' spring conference has been a pivotal event in the fisheries calendar. This year, for the first time and in recognition of the close working relationship between the two organisations, the 2012 conference is being jointly convened by RAFTS and ASFB. This provides an opportunity to present the positive contributions that fishery trusts and District Salmon Fishery Boards make individually and collaboratively to fisheries and environmental management and protection.”

Dr Alan Wells, Policy and Planning Director of ASFB welcomed the event, adding. “The four sessions concentrate on a range of topics of interest to fishery managers in Scotland with presenters from SNH, Marine Scotland Science and across the network of Boards and Trusts. Topics covered include the policy and legislative context for fisheries management, salmon genetics and related management applications, practical mitigation strategies where necessary and the promotion of better access to and use of fisheries.”

The conference will also mark the launch of the 2012 ASFB and RAFTS Annual Review. This focuses on many of the key threats to salmon and sea trout and details much of the latest research and practical projects being undertaken by Fishery Boards and Fisheries Trusts. The ASFB and RAFTS Annual Review is sponsored by legal firm Gillespie Macandrew and property consultants and land agents Strutt and Parker. Copies are available on both the ASFB and RAFTS websites or in hardcopy from ASFB/RAFTS, Capital Business Centre, 24 Canning Street, Edinburgh EH3 8EG.

ENDS

The ASFB/RAFTS Annual Review is available at <http://www.asfb.org.uk/wp-content/uploads/2011/04/2012-Annual-Review.pdf>

Issued on behalf of ASFB and RAFTS by Andrew Graham-Stewart (telephone 01863 766767 or 07812 981531).

For further information please contact:

Callum Sinclair, Director of RAFTS, on 07766 221444.

Dr Alan Wells, Policy and Planning Director for ASFB, on 0131 272 2797 or 07557 133455.

Editors' Notes

1. The Association of Salmon Fishery Boards is the representative body for Scotland's 41 District Salmon Fishery Boards (DSFBs) including the River Tweed Commission (RTC), who have a statutory responsibility to protect and improve salmon and sea trout fisheries. Conservation of fish stocks, and the habitats on which they depend, is essential and many DSFB's operate riparian habitat enhancement schemes and have voluntarily adopted 'catch and release' practices, which in some cases are made mandatory by the introduction of Salmon Conservation Regulations. ASFB creates policies that seek where possible to protect wider biodiversity and our environment as well as enhancing the economic benefits for our rural economy that result from angling. www.asfb.org.uk
2. Formed in 2005, the Rivers and Fisheries Trusts of Scotland (RAFTS) is an independent freshwater conservation charity representing Scotland's national network of 25 rivers and fisheries trusts and Foundations. Its members work across over 90% of Scotland's freshwaters to protect and develop native fish stocks and populations by undertaking a range of activities including freshwater, river habitat restoration, fish and fisheries monitoring, research and education programmes. RAFTS is the membership organisation of the rivers and fisheries trusts operating in Scotland and is, itself, a charity and company limited by guarantee. www.rafts.org.uk

ASFB | RAFTS
Capital Business Centre | 24 Canning Street | Edinburgh, EH3 8EG

Find us on Facebook

Twitter (ASFB)

Twitter (RAFTS)